Five Ways to Spark Engaged Independent Reading

Concrete Strategies to Build Reading Engagement and Enjoyment

• Set goals and expectations for yourself. Talk to students about reading and setting individual, attainable goals.

• Pick a book from a curated selection of novels and other literary works. Have a collection of high-interest titles available that include a range of instructional reading levels.

• Answer questions related to your reading. Let students choose from a set of universal summary questions that help them reflect on their reading in different ways.

• Recap what you read in a short summary. At the end of reading time, have them summarize the entire experience.

• Keep trying! Help them understand the power of ongoing effort and practice in building reading muscle and achieving their goals.

Adapted from the Shaped blog post Five Ways to Spark Engaged Independent Reading

Through award-winning leveled reader series and classroom libraries featuring a variety of genres and themes, HMH’s diverse collections of literary and informational texts will spark students’ interest and stretch reading growth. Let’s get started today!

hmhco.com/literacy